has been given the task of guarding military shipments from Nanning to Lungchou.

4. An auto repair plant and 40,000 drums of gasoline are hidden in a forest near K'ueit'anghsiang.

25X1C

5. In late September the Vietnamese language section of a foreign languages training class established at a university in the Kwangsi Military District graduated its first class of 98. The graduates were assigned as liaison officers between Chinese Communist and Viet Minh Army troops or as interpreters in the Viet Minh Army.

25X1C

6. The Chinese Communists have established four field hospitals to care for wounded Viet Minh Army officers and men at the following places:
- Taliench'eng (大連城), 20 kilometers north of Chennankuan, with a capacity for over 700 patients.
 - Shuikoukuan (106-34, 22-28), with a capacity for over 500.
 - Outside Chinghsi (106-25, 23-09), with a capacity for 800.
 - In a rural area north of Lungpang (106-19, 22-52), with a capacity for 450.

25X1C

7. The hospital at Taliench'eng has received several hundred wounded since late September. An ammunition dump and anti-aircraft batteries are in the nearby hills.

25X1C

8. Officers of the Kwangsi Military District below the rank of company commander have trained 25,000 Viet Minh guerrillas at Chinghsi, P'inghsiang (106-44, 22-06), Fangch'eng and Tunghsing (107-58, 21-33). In early October equipment for the troops was brought from Kwangtung, including 12,000 rifles, 50 x 50 and 60 mm guns, 10 guns of unknown caliber, 200 machine guns, and an unknown number of American-made rifles and pistols. As of 24 October the troops were in the Peich'i (北圻) region of Tonkin.

25X1C

9. A battalion of Viet Minh guerrillas 500 strong is stationed at Nalianghsu (107-53, 21-43).
10. A Viet Minh training battalion of 300 is at Nalianghsu, receiving instruction from one political and two military officers sent by the Kwangsi Military District.

25X1C

11. Fortifications between Chennankuan and P'ingerhkuan (106-41, 22-13) have been replaced by reinforced concrete forts surrounded by machine gun emplacements and camouflaged by trees.

25X1C

12. The highway between Chinghsi and Chienyang has been repaired and is in use. Trucks travel only by night to avoid air strafing by French planes.

13. One hundred and eighty li of highway between Fangch'eng and Nalianghsu are under repair by civilian laborers conscripted in Fangch'eng Hsien. As of 3 November the repairs were uncompleted.

14. One hundred military trucks constantly travel between Nanning and Lungchou, and 150 between Nanning and Chinghsi. They have carried over 1,000 tons of foodstuffs, tin ore, raw silk, dye plants, cinnamon oil, etc., to China from North Vietnam since the removal of the French blockade of the border.*
15. On 21 October, 1,000 tons of military supplies were at Nanning awaiting shipment to Lungchou. These supplies, loaded on 200 trucks, had arrived at Kuoiyang in early September. Guerrilla activity, destroying roads and bridges, has lengthened the normal 3-day motor trips to Lungchou into 40 days. The Kwangsi Military District has commandeered trucks and 4 steamships — the SEWELIANG, SEWEN, YUNGCHU and HAINA — to forward the supplies to Lungchou.

16. The Viet Minh has established a supply station for the receipt of supplies from the Chinese Communists in a small village on the outskirts of Chinghsi. Large civilian houses have been commandeered for storage.
17. In late September, 1,500 tons of equipment for an arsenal in Viet Minh territory was delivered to the Viet Minh Army late in September. The Supply and Service Command also sent ordnance personnel to assemble the equipment. The arsenal is expected to begin operations in January.

25X1A * [REDACTED] Comment. The items are probably carried on the return from the delivery of military supplies to the Viet Minh Army.

25X1A  [REDACTED] Comment. This refers to one of the two ordnance ships reported in [REDACTED]
